

Dr Rob Garbutt, from SCU, speaks at the launch of a short film. On Thursday, February 20, the Lismore peace group Remembering and Healing celebrated the launch of a short film at Lismore's City Library. Lismore Mayor Jenny Dowell, one of the interviewees in the film, spoke warmly about the achievements of the group and expressed her good wishes for the continuation of their work into the future. Under the guidance of SCU staff and professors a group of enthusiastic students worked with RaH to produce the short film. This film addresses the issues of peace, war and Anzac Day, and promotes discussions about multicultural Australia, Australian values, identity and inclusiveness of current Anzac Day practices. For more info about RaH: <http://rah.org.au/>.

NR Echo 27/02/2014